

I

We abandon ourselves into your empty arms, chair, turning our faces to the wall.
In a reverie of peace, we collapse against the sinking pillows of your frame.

What hand has closed the window at your side and backed you here into this corner of despair? Is it time to turn and face the precipice outside?